

by the people to express themselves by exercising their political rights and civil liberties in elections and the protection of their rights or the rights of local communities. While Thai society is It is in the process of structural changes in the economy, society and politics, with structural problems still present. From economic and social inequality, access to natural resources, corruption problems and inefficient government administration

1.3) Unrest in the southern border provinces The problem of violence in the southern border provinces caused It is a complex, delicate and multi-dimensional problem. with the main factors being taken as The problem terms are religion, culture, history the lack of justice by violent fighting It is the result of a group of people whose ideology wants to divide the land. Specific identity conditions have been applied to extend the effect of using violence. In addition, there have been conditions that complicate the situation. which tends to increase significantly